INTRODUCTION

o o o

The purpose of preparing this genealogy is to give such information as will enable any member of the Calhoun clan to trace his relationship forward and backward to other relatives, and to leave for his posterity a written history of his family, covering the years from 1792 till 1935. The information contained herein has been secured from many sources, some having been accumulated over a period of fifty years.

About the year 1896 the writer drew the Calhoun family tree. The chief source of information for this tree was the remarkable memory of Grandfather Daniel Calhoun, but this was supplemented by many dates that had been recorded over a period of many years in an old ledger that had been in use since before 1818. There is evidence in the contents of this old ledger that it was likely used first by Malcolm Calhoun, the emigrant. In 1916 this family tree was revised and a copy made for Rev. L. C. Calhoun. This copy was used several years later by Jesse Calhoun, son of C. W. Calhoun, in making excellent blue prints. In turn one of the blue prints was used by Dr. John C. Calhoun of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania in making a tabulation. The plan of tabulation used by him was adopted by me in this lineage.

About twenty years ago Rev. L. C. Calhoun wrote a forty page history of the family and sent it to the writer. This was also very valuable in this work, because it assisted very materially in tracing relationships in certain families of the clan.

The most fruitful source, however, especially for the younger generation, consists of the lists sent to me by scores of the relatives.

It has been a great task to compile and arrange all these names, but it has given me a great deal of pleasure.

Doubtless, there are many omissions and errors in this compilation, for the time was limited and the task was great.

Request is hereby made of everybody to send the writer additional names and information and corrections, so that errors may not be transmitted to future generations.

PLAN OF TABULATION

o o O O o o

The name of each person is given a number. When this name appears as head of a family the same number is placed above it. All numbers at the beginning of the lines and above family groups are in regular order. Capital letters show generations. The emigrant, Malcolm Calhoun, and wife are A, their children B, grand-children C, etc. The easiest way to find any certain name is to begin with a known ancestor and follow down the line. By means of the numbers, it is easy to follow family lines forward and backward.

The letter "b" stands for born, "m" for married, and "d" for died.

This index contains the names of only heads of certain families, but is enough to give a starting point sufficient to enable anyone who is familiar with relationships to find any other name among our relatives. The number refers to the family number in the middle of the line.

Malcolm Calhoun

In 1792, while George Washington was president, Malcolm Calhoun, his wife Christian McCorqudale Calhoun, and four small children came to America from the Isle of Skye, Scotland. Within a few years the number of children increased to eight, and now 143 years later the number of direct offspring is probably more than one thousand, residing in many states, especially in Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana.

We have no record of the place of landing, but have reason to believe that it was on the coast of Virginia and that the first 18 years were spent in Virginia, before going to North Carolina. Any way, the children married in North Carolina and some of them continued to live there several years after their father had moved to Clarke County, Alabama. He went to Grove Hill, Clarke County, Alabama, in 1820. He died August 28, 1823 and was buried at the Court House Cemetery. His wife died March 3, 1828 and was buried by his side.

John Calhoun, m 6-9-1812, Nancy Buchanan, b 2-( )-1792, d 9-13-1862

Much of the information contained herein was taken from an old ledger that was used by this son of Malcolm Calhoun. There are indications that the ledger was left with his son Daniel when he moved to Alabama and that some of the accounts were collected by the latter. Daniel used the same ledger for his accounts during the entire time he lived in Alabama.

It is a tradition that Nancy Buchanan was born on the voyage, and that it was the same ship as that on which the Calhouns came. The Buchanans were from Argyllshire Scotland. Her brothers and sisters were Duncan, John, Hugh and Mary. Duncan came about 1817 to Covington County, Mississippi, and settled one and one-half miles north of the present town of Mt. Olive. His mother and brothers and sisters lived for one or two years near him. It is said that the mother is probably buried at or near Paulding.

Three Graham sisters married Calhouns, therefore it is fitting to write of the family. On the tombstones of the parents in the Bluff Creek Presbyterian Church Cemetery in Cumberland County, North Carolina, are these inscriptions: (1) "Daniel Graham, Sr., a native of Scotland, departed this life in full faith and hope of a glorious resurrection, on November 8, 1851, aged 88 yrs."; (2) "Anne, wife of Daniel Graham, Sr., departed this life Jan. 14, 1838, aged 65 yrs. She was born in Scotland and died trusting in the merits of Jesus Christ." (In an old ledger the writer has, the mother's name is given as Nancy, therefore it was probably Nancy Anne.)

This was a wealthy family and had a considerable number of slaves. They were devout Presbyterians and leaders in the Bluff Creek Church. The oldest son, Daniel, was drowned in Black River while in swimming. He left children who became useful citizens.

Rosewood spinet was made in England and belonged to Mrs. Calhoun as a young girl; the music book also belonged to her and has her name written in it.

The metal plate on stand was picked up by Mr. Clemson from a street in Paris, France, during the July, 1830 uprising; the plate features a design of St. George and the Dragon; the unique lettering on the border has never been deciphered.

The mirror, gold decorated vases, bellows for starting fires, chairs, whatnot, tilt-top table, marble top table, drum-head candle stands, oriental rugs, busts of Calhoun, pair floor candelabras—each holding nineteen candles, lap writing desk, depicting a picture of the Colquhoun castle in Scotland with mother-of-pearl inlay, and bric-a-brac, are all Calhoun pieces.

Small photo album belonged to Floride Calhoun and was given to Fort Hill by Mrs. D. P. Thompson.

The paintings were made in Belgium by Eckhart; the large portrait is of Mrs. Clemson, and the two smaller ones are of the Clemson children. Through the kindness of Mrs. B. E. Fernow, Clemson artist, who cleaned the children's portraits a few years ago, much hidden beauty was brought to light.

The glass chandelier is of the period and formerly hung in an old home in Charleston.

The gold metal cornices over the windows are originals. The draperies are reproductions made in 1934. Plans are being considered for new draperies and curtains throughout the house.

FORMAL DINING ROOM

Solid mahogany Duncan Phyfe banquet table and twelve matching chairs were John C. Calhoun's, and have only been out of the house long enough to be refinished; chairs still have the original horsehair cloth upholstery.

The sideboard was a gift from Henry Clay to Mr. Calhoun after one of his great speeches defending the Constitution of the United States. According to reliable information, the handsome relic was made from mahogany paneling taken from the officers' quarters of the old frigate, Constitution (Old Ironsides) after it was condemned as unseaworthy in the late 1820's, and before the poem, "Old Ironsides," was written by Oliver Wendell Holmes. The sideboard remained in Fort Hill during the lifetime of the Calhouns and Clemsons. At Mr. Clemson's death it was inherited by his granddaughter and was taken to her home in New York; it later changed hands several times and finally passed out of the family. In 1938, the historic relic was traced through the help of the Anderson Art Galleries and French and Company of New York, to the private owner, who permitted it to be purchased and returned to Fort Hill.

Mrs. Calhoun's solid silver coffee urn on the sideboard has her initials engraved on it. The silver plates on the mantel also have the engraved initials on the border. Other Calhoun silver includes the candle holders, syrup pitcher, gravy boat, decanter tray, and castor set.

The crystal compote on banquet table was Mrs. Calhoun's and was returned as a gift from Mrs. A. F. McKissick. The glass decanter was Mr. Clemson's; it was given by him to Dr. W. W. Watkins, and was presented Fort Hill by the sisters-in-law of Dr. Watkins, Mrs. S. M. Martin, Mrs. W. W. Klugh, and Miss Louisa Simpson.

The large hurricane shades for candles were secured from Miss Agnes Bloodworth; they were new in 1854 when her parents started housekeeping in Georgetown, and during the War Between the States were floated up the river, wrapped in feather beds, to Kingstree where they were refugeeing.

The sword belonged to Colonel Ransom Calhoun, nephew of Mrs. John C. Calhoun, who was killed in 1862 in a duel with Alfred Rhett of Charleston. Steel engraving over the mantel is of Mr. Calhoun.

Side tables were Mr. Clemson's and were brought from Belgium. The small table with inlaid border and mirror in gold-leaf frame are Calhoun pieces.

The brass andirons were a gift from W. E. Freeman of Greenville. Wooden window cornices of Roman faces design are originals; the green draperies, chosen to match the cornices, were made in 1934.

PARLOR

Among the rare old relics in the parlor are two Washington pieces—sofa and a Windsor chair; tradition says the chair was used by George Washington at Trenton, and that the eagles on the back of the sofa were used by the mint as models for eagles on the first American silver coins. These pieces came to Fort Hill through Mr. Clemson's sister, who married a grand-nephew of George Washington.

The carved chair upholstered in red velvet was a gift to Mr. Clemson while he was serving in the diplomatic service to Belgium, by King Leopold, likenesses of the king are carved on each arm.

Marble bust on pedestal is of Cornelia Clemson, who died when three years of age; the bust was made in Paris, by Powers, and was presented to Fort Hill by Miss Margaret M. Calhoun as a memorial to her brother, Patrick Calhoun.

beloved statesman from the citizens of South Carolina; it has been loaned to Fort Hill by Miss Margaret Calhoun.

OFFICE

A boxwood bordered walk beneath overhanging branches of ancient trees leads from the south portico of the mansion to Calhoun's private office or study on the lawn. This building was his sacred abode; his library was here, and in the quiet of this room he could think and plan without interruption from family or friends; much of his literary work was prepared here, and many of the knotty political problems solved. Great orations which commanded admiration from both friend and foe were penned in this room.

The building is in excellent condition. Ceiling and walls are finished in broad oak paneling. Most of the wall space is taken up with bookshelves extending to the ceiling, and with the remaining space covered with quaint old maps made by distinguished scholars and geographers from 1819 to 1845. An old family desk (refinished) is in the west corner, and was a gift from R. C. Bonneau, Jr., Greensboro, North Carolina.

FAMILY DINING ROOM

Original pieces in the family dining and sitting room are the mahogany extension table, mahogany sideboard, pair boxes for flat silver, inlaid with satin wood, covered vegetable dish of English china, Majolica bowl and large vase, pair red Bohemian glass wine decanters, glass sugar crusher, blue salt glass tea pot, candle mold, bone dishes, model of "Old Ironsides" said to have been made by John Calhoun Clemson, Mrs. Calhoun's foot warmer for the carriage.

The settle is a Calhoun piece formerly used in the hall; this relic was returned to Fort Hill as a gift from Miss Martha Calhoun Lewis in memory of her brother, Ben Lewis of Greenville. Blue hand-woven coverlet was a gift from Mrs. Franklin Sherman.

The little sewing machine of Mrs. Clemson's was bought at the Clemson sale by Col. J. C. Stribling, and presented to Fort Hill some years ago by his daughter.

Stone mortar and pestle came from the old home of Dr. W. H. Mills, and was presented by Mrs. Mills.

On the wall hangs a framed copy of Calhoun's last speech printed on white satin, and an oil painting from the Clemson collection, painted in 1847 by Louis Robbe in Brussels.

Split bottom chairs, clock, pewter plate and pitcher, fireplace equipment and swinging crane are of the period.

DISPLAY CASE

The display case contains various personal articles which belonged to the Calhouns and Clemsons. Bracelet was made from Calhoun's hair; slippers, pair of embroidered stockings and gloves belonged to Mrs. Calhoun's mother; a pair of stockings also belonged to Mrs. Calhoun, and a pair to Mrs. Clemson; handbag was carried by Mrs. Calhoun to the inauguration of Andrew Jackson as President of the United States and John C. Calhoun as Vice-President. A medal presented to Mr. Clemson in 1860; picture of Floride Clemson at the age of 15, and one of John Calhoun Clemson, age 16. These relics were gifts from Miss Margaret M. Calhoun.

The prayer book was presented to Fort Hill by Miss Margaret M. Calhoun in memory of her father, Andrew Pickens Calhoun, III.

Mrs. Calhoun's tea caddy and three small silver spoons; beaded purse; Mrs. Clemson's gold earrings; folding knife and fork used by Captain John Calhoun Clemson while in the Confederate Army; dinner napkin 36 inches square; curtain tiebacks—gifts from Mrs. Jane Prince.

Silver dinner fork and three silver spoons belonging to the Calhouns—gifts from Miss Olive Boggs Newton. Teaspoon of Calhoun silver presented to Fort Hill by Mrs. Myra Boggs, and two forks secured from Mrs. Walter Pike.

The Calhoun Coat of Arms was painted and presented to Fort Hill by Mrs. J. A. McCrary, Alexandria, Virginia. Ship's clear-

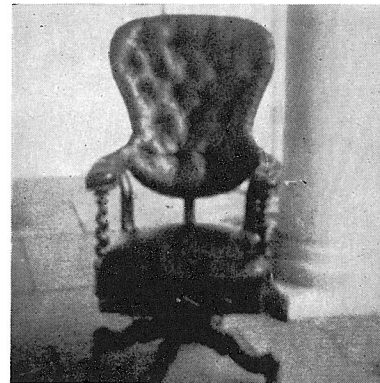

The wide pine flooring in the parlor, formal dining room, and master bedroom, sanded and waxed several years ago, features Oriental scatter rugs which were used in the Calhoun home in Washington. Plans are nurtured for having a replica of the original carpet made sometime in the future for the parlor floor. Mrs. Calhoun's carriage foot-warmer is topped with a piece of handsome dark red Brussels carpet which is believed to be a piece of the original covering.

The wallpaper in the house was renewed about fifteen years ago. The bedroom over the parlor has a replica of the original paper; it was reproduced from a piece of sufficient size found in the adjoining dressing room. The parlor paper is a period pattern featuring a similar shade of blue on a piece of original border found above a window during the early restoration. Gray pastoral scenes adorning the walls of the formal dining room blends artistically with the dark green draperies and satin-smooth mahogany furniture. The nursery paper features children at play wearing colorful and quaint garments. All the other rooms have lovely old patterns of generations ago.

HALL

The desk was brought in from the office and holds the guest book, which is signed each year by thousands of visitors from every state in the union and many foreign countries. Over the desk hangs a large Banjo clock which also came from the office.

Other hall relics are—an imported marble top pier table and mirror; two side chairs; paintings from the Clemson collection; steel engraving of Mr. Calhoun; and a framed picture of the homes of Clay, Webster, and Calhoun.

Furnishings

Most of the furnishings in Fort Hill are originals—many pieces being retained in the house through the will of Thomas G. Clemson. Other family pieces have been acquired by gift, loan, or purchase through the cooperation of the South Carolina Division United Daughters of the Confederacy, Clemson College, and interested friends.

Handbook for Travellers on the Continent, books on Geology, Ancient Geography, Cornelia Clemson's Thumb Testament, Floride Clemson's Autograph Album containing some of her original poems, etc.

MASTER BEDROOM

The huge four-poster bed was made for Mrs. Calhoun when a young girl; her home was in Charleston and the bed was made there. It went to Washington with the Calhoun's, and is said to be the one occupied by General Lafayette when he was a guest in their home on his last trip to America—Calhoun was then vice-president of the United States. The bed was bought from the heirs by the Charleston Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy in 1936, and presented to Fort Hill in memory of Miss Mary Poppenheim, former President-General of the organization.

The chintz appliqued quilt was made by John C. Calhoun's daughter, Cornelia, and was a gift to Fort Hill by Dr. and Mrs. Phinazy Calhoun of Atlanta.

Other original pieces are the round center table, tortoise shell sewing box with Mrs. Calhoun's name engraved on a silver plate on the lid, tall lamp for sperm oil, 1841 and 1846 copies of Godey's Lady's Books, night stand, silver candlesticks, chairs, corner washstand, reclining chair made in Charleston and presented to Mr. Calhoun as a gift.

The combination wardrobe and bureau was designed by Mrs. Calhoun similar to one used by Dolly Madison in the White House, and it was made in Pendleton by cabinet maker Knauff; the small bureau was also made by Knauff and matches the combination.

Calhoun's folding lap desk was originally his mother's; it was used by him on his trips to and from Washington, and was given to the mansion by Miss Margaret Calhoun. The small leather trunk was returned as a gift by Jack Summers; each end of the trunk has the initials J. C. C. in large black letters.

The lovely old bowl and pitcher set for washstand was a gift of Mrs. Will Doyle. Framed tribute of Citizens of Charleston to John C. Calhoun, April 2, 1850, was a gift from Mrs. John Francis Calhoun. Scent bottles on the dresser, and the clock are of the period; vases are originals.

The linen sheet was made from flax grown, carded and woven on the Clemson farm in Maryland, and was presented the mansion by Mrs. Jane Prince. The white bedspread, hand-woven in 1875, is a loan from Mrs. F. T. Dargan. Framed picture of Confederate Flags was a gift from Mrs. J. C. Littlejohn. Framed picture of Calhoun and pamphlet were presented by Mrs. C. H. Townsend of Walterboro.

CHILDREN'S ROOM

The bed and dresser belonged to Floride Clemson and was given to her by her aunt, Louisa Clemson Washington. When Floride married Gideon Lee of New York, she took the furniture

Mrs. Clemson succumbed suddenly from a heart attack at Fort Hill in 1875; therefore, by her will, the plantation passed to her distinguished husband, who, at his death in 1888, bequeathed the property, as they had planned, to the State of South Carolina, to be utilized for educational purposes. Mr. Clemson's bequest of approximately $100,000, including the Fort Hill estate and much of his own personal fortune, made possible the founding of the school which bears his name—Clemson Agricultural and Mechanical College which opened for students in 1893.

Mr. Clemson's will provided that three rooms of the old plantation house be preserved as a shrine in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Calhoun, Mrs. Clemson, and the three Clemson children, and that no admission be charged. Therefore, to help further the restoration purposes, the John C. Calhoun Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, has placed a voluntary offering box in the house for the convenience of visitors wishing to leave a contribution. Today, the entire house is maintained as a shrine in memory of the Calhouns and Clemsons.

Fort Hill was the home of four Confederate soldiers—Thomas G. Clemson and his son, John Calhoun Clemson, Duff G. Calhoun, and John C. Calhoun, III.

The lumber in the house was all hand-finished, including the simple, but beautifully designed, mantels. The nails that were used were the square hand-forged type. Many of the thin and bubbly original panes of glass are still in the windows, and the green shutters on doors and windows are originals.

Each bedroom formerly had a service bell attached to the wall on the outside of the room, but which was manipulated by pulling a cord or wire from the inside; these bells were for summoning servants when needed. Only two bells are left at Fort Hill today—one attached to the northwest bedroom and one on the yellow room under the north portico.

The family dining room with its extremely wide boards in the flooring, siding and ceiling, features a huge fireplace with Dutch oven on the side for baking. This room is one of the originals built about 1803 by Dr. McElhenny, and served as his kitchen. The Calhouns enlarged the room and used it as a family dining and sitting room. Evidently, the large fireplace with Dutch oven was closed up then, or sometime soon afterwards, as no one living knew of its existence until about 1935 when it was discovered and left open. A small fireplace had been built in the large opening and the remaining space sealed over.

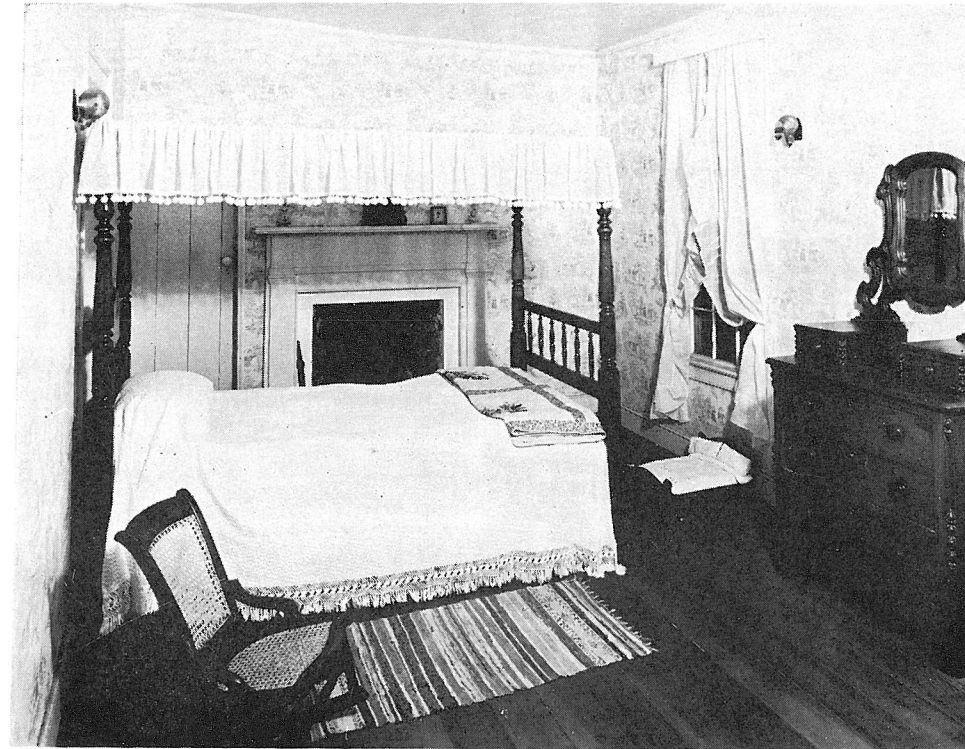

assistance with the interior restoration and to extend the invitation to other chapters in the state. Outstanding accomplishments were realized in 1934 by the chapter committee, and the following year the South Carolina Division of the Daughters entered into the project. Today, the Daughters and college officials continue working together to further the authentic restoration of the nationally known historic shrine.

Antedating several years the above restoration of the Calhoun home, Mrs. P. H. Mell, wife of Dr. Mell, an early president of Clemson College, made a careful survey of the furnishings stored in the house and urged additional space to display the relics as Mr. Clemson requested. Informative articles were written by her for the Clemson Chronicle in 1904-'05 revealing authentic knowledge of the furnishings and a good description of the rooms.

Fort Hill is a rambling white frame structure of fourteen rooms and spacious halls, situated on the crest of a little knoll in the center of Clemson College's beautiful campus. It is a characteristic Southern colonial home of simple design. The broad piazzas on the north, east, and south entrances are supported by large white plastered columns reaching to the roof of the second story. The house has eight bedrooms, three large dressing rooms, parlor, formal dining room, family dining and sitting room, halls, and a large basement kitchen with pantry and wine cellar. The basement kitchen was used by the Clemsons when Fort Hill was their home. Fourteen fireplaces kept the house, office, and kitchen warm in the early days, but none of them are used today. Heat for the house has been piped from the central heating plant of the College, with radiators installed in the north hall and family dining room.

A few years after Mr. Calhoun's death in 1850, Mrs. Calhoun sold the Fort Hill property to her son, Andrew, and she moved to a smaller place, "MiCasa," in Pendleton. Andrew died in 1865 before payment for the estate had been realized. Claims against the property were redeemed by Mr. Clemson, thus keeping it in the family. At Mrs. Calhoun's death in 1866, Anna Calhoun Clemson, her last surviving child, inherited the plantation. The Clemsons came to Fort Hill to make their permanent home in 1872.

After the tragic death of the last of the three Clemson children, John Calhoun Clemson, who was killed in a train wreck on the old Blue Ridge railway, Mr. and Mrs. Clemson decided to leave the Fort Hill plantation to the State of South Carolina to be used for the establishment of a scientific school of agriculture. They were now bereft of children, as only seventeen days prior to the son's tragedy, their daughter, Floride Lee died in New York; their third child, Cornelia, had died many years earlier. A granddaughter survived, Isabella Floride Lee, who later married her cousin, Andrew Pickens Calhoun, III.

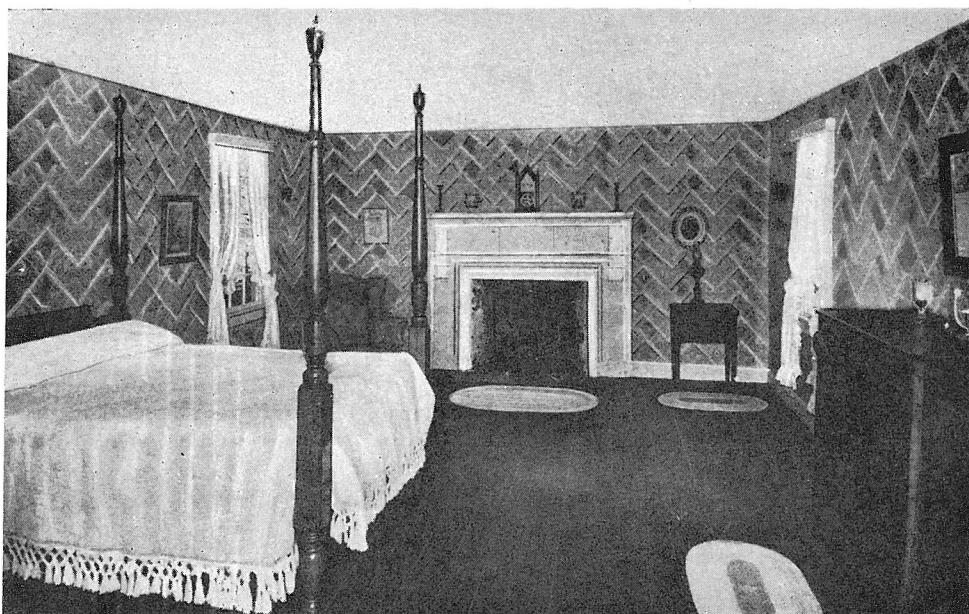

with her to her new home, where it remained until their daughter, Isabella Floride Lee, married Andrew Calhoun and brought the furniture to Atlanta. Miss Margaret Calhoun inherited it from her mother, and permitted it to come back to Fort Hill in 1937. The sixth grade of the Parker District School in Greenville gave a large donation towards purchasing the bed, and the Barnard E. Bee Chapter, Children of Confederacy of Clemson purchased the dresser. Mattress and pillows were gifts of Orders Mattress Co.

The bedspread was copied from an old design by students of the College Textile Department, and presented as a gift. The quilt was made by Miss Leah Evans of Orangeburg around 1825, and was given to Fort Hill by her niece, Mrs. J. E. Daniel. The Rocking chair of the period was a gift from Mrs. John Russell through Mrs. A. G. Holmes. The small straight chair was given by Mrs. C. C. Newman, and had been in her family for about a hundred and fifty years. Small picture on mantel was presented by Mrs. E. W. Sikes, and is a likeness of Calhoun's great-great-granddaughter, Miss Marjorie Calhoun. The clock, doll, toy dresser, and cups and saucers, were gifts of Miss Margaret M. Calhoun. Tansy-tea mug was given by Mrs. F. S. Rodgers of Charleston. Picture on the wall is of Mrs. Clemson and two children when quite young. Doll bed originally belonged to Anna Calhoun, and later to her daughter, Floride Clemson.

The baby crib was absent from Fort Hill for eighty years—it was given by Mrs. Calhoun to Alice Cecilia Pike when she was born in 1852, daughter of Mrs. Martha Pike, who made by hand most of Mrs. Calhoun's wardrobe. The relic was returned to the mansion as a gift in 1932 by Mrs. Edith Woodson, who had inherited it. The crib was made in Pendleton and retains its original finish.

ISABELLA FLORIDE LEE CALHOUN MEMORIAL ROOM

This room was furnished in memory of Isabella Floride Lee Calhoun, granddaughter of Thomas G. Clemson and great-granddaughter of John C. Calhoun, who visited her grandparents here. The furniture belonged to her and was presented to Fort Hill as a gift from her husband, Andrew Pickens Calhoun, and her children, Margaret and Patrick Calhoun.

FORT HILL

It was around 1825-'26 when the John C. Calhouns left their Dumbarton Oaks home on Georgetown Heights in Washington, D. C., to establish their permanent residence in their native South Carolina. The Fort Hill plantation of over eleven hundred acres (now the site of Clemson College) was Calhoun's last home. Although duties in national affairs required his presence in Washington several months out of the year, eagerly each spring he joined his family at Fort Hill and enjoyed the life of a country planter until time for Congress to convene in the autumn.

Previous to Calhoun's occupancy of the plantation, the land had been acquired in 1802 by Dr. James McElhenny, pastor of nearby Old Stone Church, who erected a small two-story dwelling which was perhaps finished the following year; the manse was known as "Clergy Hall." This small house was enlarged by the Calhouns to its present size, including the three huge columned piazzas, office or library on the south lawn, separate kitchen near the west wing, slave quarters, and other buildings necessary for a self-sustaining plantation. Mr. Calhoun changed the name of the place to "Fort Hill," honoring old Fort Rutledge which had been erected on the land in 1776 as a refuge from the Indians; an attractive marker has been placed on the site of the old fort.

Today, the original buildings are the mansion and the office on the lawn. The separate kitchen is a replica of the original and was erected in the early 1940's from material taken from another old building over a century old. The slave quarters and other plantation buildings were all removed years ago. The negro quarters were about half a mile from the mansion, situated on a hill. The houses were built of stone and joined together like barracks; each house had a yard and garden. Mr. Calhoun's policy was to give each slave a patch of land to cultivate for himself; he had it plowed, and the negroes planted and cultivated their cotton in leisure time and received the proceeds from it.

Fort Hill was used as a residence until around 1928, when college officials started action on an idea which had long been formulating in the minds of some of the trustees and school authorities—the restoration of the Calhoun home as a shrine. The house was vacated as a residence, and exterior restoration was put in operation. A fireproof roof replaced the shingle roof, and all fire hazards, as far as possible, were removed. Out buildings that had fallen into ruins were razed; the grounds were cleared of undergrowth, and walks and driveways restored and beautified by bordering them with several hundred English boxwood plants.

Shortly afterwards, the college committee invited the John C. Calhoun Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, to lend

Fort Hill

Mid the oaks, magnolia and holly,
Is a South Carolina Home,
Dear to every Southern heart
Wherever one may roam.
Black mammy sang in the twilight
Lullabies so sweet and low,
To the little Calhoun children
At Fort Hill long ago.

When the sun peeps o'er the horizon
Shining brightly o'er all the land,
The tall white columns of the mansion
Like soldiers proudly stand.
The bugles of Clemson at reveille
Echo through the halls today,
Where once was heard the songs of darkies
In the fields at break of day.

CHORUS

What Mount Vernon is to Washington,
And Stratford is to Lee,
Fort Hill is to John C. Calhoun
A shrine to his memory,
Fort Hill, Oh! beautiful Fort Hill
Where pleasant memories linger still.

Words and Music by Mrs. E. W. Cook

(Composed in 1939 for pageant presented by Barnard E. Bee Chapter, Children of Confederacy of Clemson.)

The wallpaper is a replica of the original. The four-poster bed, bedside table, sewing table, and chest are of maple. Bedspread was made from cotton grown on the Fort Hill plantation and woven by the slaves. The portrait in oval frame is Isabella Floride Lee Calhoun, who wrote the words to the beautiful song—THE HILLS OF HOME; a childhood picture of her three children—Margaret, Patrick, and Lee Calhoun, was recently placed in the room.

DRESSING ROOM

The small carriage trunk was John C. Calhoun's.

Mrs. Calhoun's china foot tub was a gift to Fort Hill from Mrs. Jane Prince. Washstand and towel rack are of the period; bowl and pitcher belonged to the Clemsons.

The sitz bath tub of the period was a gift from Dr. Valley of Pickens.

NORTHEAST BEDROOM

This room restored in 1937 by the South Carolina Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, contains a marble-topped bureau, French sewing cabinet—inlaid with mother-of-pearl, chest-on-chest, chair, mirror-glass vases, and luster pitcher—all Calhoun relics. The French or sleigh bed is one that Mr. Clemson brought from abroad; the bedspread, handwoven and handtufted, was a gift from Mrs. Raymond Beatty through Mrs. J. H. McHugh. Mr. Clemson painted the Madonna picture over the mantel; it is a copy of an original in the palace in Brussels. The flower prints, rocker, curtains and rugs are reproductions.

BEDROOM OVER HALL (YELLOW ROOM)

The low four-poster maple bed (acorn design) is a Calhoun piece. Hand-woven bedspread is of the period. The large chest of drawers was known as Mrs. Calhoun's bonnet chest, because of the two deep drawers for her hats or bonnets. The sewing table also was Mrs. Calhoun's. The clock, and century-old split bottomed rocker are of the period. Marble bust of Mars blonged to Calhoun, and was presented to Fort Hill by Mrs. Essie Prince Boggs. Hooked rugs were gifts of Craig-Rush Company of Greenville. The picture of Breadfruit belonged to Mr. Clemson, and the centerpiece on sewing table was Mrs. Calhoun's.

DRESSING ROOM

Hat bath tub was Mr. Clemson's, and was given back to Fort Hill by Mrs. S. B. Earle. The sitz tub was a gift from Dr. Valley of Pickens. Bowl and pitcher were gifts from Mrs. Joe Douthit, Jr., Pendleton. The ewer used for bringing hot water for baths belonged to the Calhouns, and was presented Fort Hill by Mrs. Prince. The trunk was Mr. Clemson's and has his initials (T. G. C.) on each end. Wooden box was used for holding papers, and has printed on each side—"Hon. John C. Calhoun."

THOMAS G. CLEMSON ROOM

This room is furnished with possessions of Thomas G. Clemson. The papering was made possible by contributions of the local chapter of Clemson alumni, and the furniture was purchased back with funds donated by Mr. Cecil Reid of Fredericksburg, Virginia—Class of 1902.

The seven foot walnut spool bed, designed by Mrs. Calhoun for Mr. Clemson, who was extremely tall (6 ft. 6 ins.) was made in Pendleton by cabinet-maker Knauff. The matching dresser was also made by Mr. Knauff. Bedspread and pillow cases are original Clemson linen. Pin cushion was made by Floride Clemson. Washstand, bowl, pitcher, and soap dishes are all original pieces. The and plum; velvets and moires were favorite materials, with collars, cuffs and dainty caps of real lace. She was an ardent Episcopalian and is buried in St. Paul's Episcopal churchyard in Pendleton, four miles from Fort Hill, where many of her immediate family are buried.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA)

The silver baptismal bowl has been used for the baptism of each member of the family, it is also at Fort Hill, and has engraved upon it the following inscription:

"On the 7th November A. D. 1809, by the Rector, Wardens, and Vestry of Trinity Church in Newport, Rhode Island, to Miss Floride Calhoun of Charleston, South Carolina, as a testimony of their sense of the obliging manner and excellent skill with which she has performed on the organ of the Church, and as a small token of their gratitude and respect."

Mrs. Calhoun was looked upon as boss of the Fort Hill plantation during her husband's absence in Washington. She handled the slaves admirably, and educated all that were inclined towards the trades of the times. Due to her excellent training, it is said that her house-servants were in great demand after her death.

The Calhouns were socially prominent and were accepted as qualified leaders of society. Mrs. Calhoun was always correctly attired for every occasion. Her favorite colors leaned towards black two large velvet upholstered chairs and bronze figurines were brought from Brussels.

The portrait over the mantel is one Mr. Clemson painted of himself by looking in a mirror. Photographs in oval frames are of the Clemson children. The framed photograph of Mr. Clemson was a gift to Fort Hill by Mrs. Jane Prince.

The sewing table belonged to Mrs. Clemson and was brought from abroad. Two knit lace tidies on chairs were made by Mrs. Calhoun, and are loans from Mrs. Mamie Crawford.

Andirons and tongs were left in the house by Mr. Clemson. The curtains were copied from original piece of material by the College Textile Department, and the lace was knit by Mrs. J. W. Smith of Calhoun, an exact replica of the original lace.

BEDROOM OVER NURSERY

The maple spool bed of the Calhouns was presented back to Fort Hill by Dr. Valley of Pickens. The bedspread was copied and presented as a gift by the College Textile Department. Currier and Ives print was a gift from Butler Guards Chapter, Children of Confederacy, Greenville. Vases are originals. The maple chest, table and lamp belonged to the Calhouns. Mirror is a copy. The chair belonged to Mr. Clemson, and was a gift to Fort Hill by Adger McCravy.

NORTHWEST BEDROOM

Single mahogany spool bed, low chair, and overseas chest were Clemson pieces. The bedside table is said to be the one that was at John C. Calhoun's bedside in Washington when he died; the chimney for the candle is an original one. The medicine chest was Calhoun's. Bedspread—gift of Mrs. Frances Thames of Greenville.

SEPARATE KITCHEN

This building is a replica of the Calhoun outdoor kitchen; it was erected in 1944 through the efforts of the South Carolina Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy and Clemson College officials. The material chiefly came from an old house in the vicinity, with hand-hewn logs mortised and pegged together. A covered passageway connects the building to the west wing of the mansion. Near the south door is a thriving bed of herbs—mint, sage, rosemary, lavender, thyme, parsley, chives, etc. Plants were gifts from Mrs. R. D. Wright, Newberry; Mrs. T. J. Mauldin, Pickens; Miss Zena Payne, Johnston; Mrs. J. R. Carson, Chester; Mrs. T. M. Harvey, Columbia; Mrs. H. P. Wicker, Prosperity; Mrs. Duvall, Cheraw; Mrs. D. S. travellers, resulting in many being massacred. Some were taken captive and later escaped, while others were never heard from again. Patrick Calhoun returned to the scene the next morning to bury the victims—all were placed in one large grave. John C. Calhoun's grandmother, Catherine, age 76, was among the twenty-three slain. Two crude headstones were erected on the spot, the larger stone bearing a quaint inscription which told the sad story. These markers on the site of the massacre are some distance inland on the Troy-Abbeville highway.

The father of John C. Calhoun was an outstanding citizen. He was a member of the Commons House of Assembly from Prince William's Parish in 1769—the first representative from upper South Carolina. During the early Revolutionary conflict in the State, Patrick Calhoun was sent as a deputy to the first Provincial Congress; later he was made a member of the first General Assembly of South Carolina when on March 26, 1776, that Congress adopted an independent Constitution. Patrick Calhoun was married twice; his first wife was Miss Jane Craighead, daughter of the Rev. Alexander Craighead, and after her death, he married Miss Martha Caldwell; the Caldwells were also staunch Scotch-Irish Presbyterians who settled in Virginia, and later moved on to South Carolina. Patrick Calhoun died in 1796 leaving his widow with five children—James, Catherine (Mrs. Moses Waddell), William, John C. and Patrick.

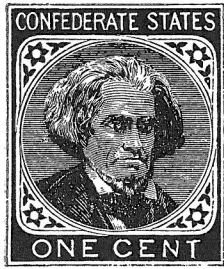

Floride Bonneau Colhoun and her second cousin, John C. Calhoun, were married on January 8, 1811, at the beautiful home of her parents, Hon. and Mrs. John Ewing Colhoun, on the lower Santee River in South Carolina.

Floride Colhoun (name spelled with "o" instead of "a") was a product of the French Huguenot aristocracy of Charleston, and spent her girlhood summers with her mother in fashionable Newport, Rhode Island. She was highly educated, and an accomplished musician. While in the famous northern resort, she often gave her services to the Episcopal Church as organist. In appreciation for this service, a handsomely bound family prayer book and a solid silver baptismal bowl were presented her. The following inscription is in the prayer book:

"Newport, Rhode Island, 17th March, 1807. Presented to Miss Floride Colhoun by the Rector, Wardens, and Vestry of Trinity Church in Newport, as a small token of their sense of her skill and kindness, in performing upon the organ of the Church, while the Church is unavoidably destitute of an organist. By order of the Vestry, Theodore Dehon, Rector."

The prayer book, containing records of births, marriages, and deaths of the family, was presented as a gift to Fort Hill, May 9, 1948, by Miss Margaret M. Calhoun, in memory of her father, Andrew Pickens Calhoun, III.

versity, requested a set of his books, and the South Carolina Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, promptly presented Oxford with the desired complete works of John C. Calhoun. The Confederate Government chose the likeness of John C. Calhoun for its one-cent denomination postage stamp; however, the stamp of orange color, made by the de La Rue Company of London, England, was never put to use because of changes in postal rates.

Ancestry

John C. Calhoun was a product of God-fearing Scotch-Irish ancestry. The Scottish ancestor of the Calhoun or Colquhoun family was Ingelram de Colquhoun of the early thirteenth century, whose father had been granted large tracts of land by Alexander II. Colquhoun was a place name, and was assumed by the family on coming into possession of the vast acres in Scotland. Generations later the name was shortened by some branches of the family to Calhoun or Colhoun. However, the Colquhoun spelling is still often used in Scotland.

In 1733, Patrick, John C. Calhoun's father, came to America with his parents, older brothers, James, Ezekiel, and William, and his sister, Mary. Their first home was in Pennsylvania. Later they moved to Virginia, and after Braddock's defeat when the Indians made living there unsafe, they migrated on to South Carolina in 1756. Large tracts of land were granted the settlers in Abbeville District, resulting in the Calhoun settlement near Abbeville.

About four years later, increased unfriendliness of the Cherokee Indians made the pioneers feel the urgent need of placing the women and children in a fortress. Hence, on February 1, 1760, they started for the fort in Augusta, Georgia, but when only a short time on the way, a band of savages made a surprise attack on the

FIREPLACE AND DUTCH OVEN IN RESTORED KITCHEN

The fireplace came from an old house and was rebuilt here. On the hearth are various sizes of iron cooking utensils, plate warmer, jelly maker, churn, cover for tray to keep food warm while transporting to dining room. The mantel holds an original Iron-stone china platter and glazed jugs. The iron mortar and pestle for grinding spices was a gift from Mrs. Fred Patterson. Long-handled wafer and waffle irons hanging on the wall were gifts from Mrs. Ernest Fant, Mrs. Tozier, and Miss Ida Calhoun. Large ladle was given by Mrs. J. R. Carson of Chester. Waffle iron for stove, soapstone warmer, and large ham boiler were presented through B. G. Hunter of Pendleton. Other articles include an old pine table given by D. J. Watson, Windsor settle, and six arrow-back chairs made in 1788. Breadboard, tray, rolling pin, coffee grinder, beaten biscuit mallet, etc., are original articles. The corner cupboard came from the overseer's house and was made perhaps by slave carpenters; in the cupboard are some pieces of original Iron-stone china, Chinese ginger jar, mellon mold, etc.

BASEMENT KITCHEN

When the Clemsons lived at Fort Hill, the basement was used as their kitchen; a dumb waiter was installed where the shelves are today. The tall clothes press was Mrs. Calhoun's. The large rocker was made especially for Mr. Clemson, and is the one he used on the porch.

SPRING HOUSE

The restoration of the old spring on the north lawn, a project undertaken in 1941 by the Children of the Confederacy of South Carolina, is hoped to be completed shortly. Plans are to install a simple fountain and have drinking water piped to it. The spring which has been dry for more than half a century, originally furnished water for the household, and the cool spring house served as a refrigerator for keeping milk, butter, and other perishables fresh and sweet. Mrs. Calhoun is credited with the supervision of building the high rock masonry with handy projecting ledges.

LAWN

On the spacious lawn are many fine old trees which add greatly to the interest of the shrine. A huge oak stump stands as a reminder of Thomas G. Clemson, as it was under the branches of this tree that the first meeting of the trustees was held to formulate plans for the future school. Two long rows of stately cedars were planted about 1830 by Mrs. Calhoun. Only a stump now remains of the Stephen Decatur varnish tree which was brought by the Commodore to his friend John C. Calhoun, from the Island of Madagascar. On the northeast lawn is an arbor vitae presented to Calhoun by Henry Clay, and a handsome Canadian Hemlock given by Daniel Webster. Other beautiful trees include the holly, black locust, mimosa, tulip, hackberry, crepe myrtle, etc.

The English boxwood hedge bordering the walks and drive-ways number several hundred handsome specimen. The extremely large ones near the house are perhaps a hundred years old or more, but the smaller plants were propagated by J. R. Carey of the college grounds department about twenty-five years ago.

people in the galleries as this last appeal for peace between the North and South was sought by the eminent South Carolina leader.

When the speech was finished, the great triumvirate—Calhoun, Clay, and Webster, engaged in an earnest conversation for a few minutes, then Mr. Calhoun was assisted back to his room. Less than four weeks later, on March 31, 7:30 A. M., John C. Calhoun died. When death was near he remarked to a friend: "I desire to die in the discharge of my duty; I have an unshaken reliance upon the providence of God." To the end his thoughts were for: "The South, the poor South."

The Senate adjourned as a mark of respect and resolved that members go into mourning for a month by wearing crepe on the left arm. Both Clay and Webster were pallbearers at the funeral in Washington on April 2nd.

Governor Seabrook of South Carolina appointed a committee of twenty-five prominent men as an escort to accompany the remains of her favorite son from Washington to Charleston for burial. Two sons of the statesman also accompanied the committee—Andrew and Patrick, who was a Major in the U. S. Army. Dr. John C. Calhoun, Jr., was at the bedside of his father when he died.

Although John C. Calhoun was reared a Presbyterian, he later embraced the Episcopal faith of his wife, and was laid to rest in the west cemetery of historic old St. Philip's Episcopal Church in Charleston. Engraved on his monument are these words, "Truth, Justice and the Constitution."

Memorials

John C. Calhoun is a name honored among men and will live on as long as American history exists. Counties, towns, and streets in various states are named for him; hotels also, including the handsome John C. Calhoun hotel in nearby Anderson; monuments have been erected to his memory, such as the towering Calhoun Monument on Marion Square in Charleston, South Carolina. Yale University has honored him with a College bearing his name; patriotic organizations have chapters named for him; the Calhoun Literary Societies are in various institutions of learning. An annual award in the Historical Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, General Organization, is a silver trophy for the best essay on "John C. Calhoun, Apostle of States' Rights." His statue graces the Hall of Fame in the nation's Capitol in Washington. His books are in prominent libraries both at home and abroad. In 1923 the Professor of American History of England's Oxford Uni-

Mr. Calhoun was appointed Secretary of War in 1817 and reelected four years later. While serving in this capacity, the United States Military Academy at West Point was rejuvenated and started on its way to become the world's greatest military school. He served as vice-president of the United States under John Quincy Adams, and was reelected with Andrew Jackson. At this time he was the favorite man for the next President, and perhaps if he had been more of a politician and less a statesman, he would have made the presidency. In the Calhoun Family Bible is an old and faded bookmark of wide red ribbon with the following message embroidered in red cross-stitch given to him by an admiring friend: "True greatness in you sir, is very evident; so much so, may you be our next PRESIDENT." signed S. F. S. He did not run for the presidency, and in 1832, resigned the vice-presidency to take a seat in the Senate from South Carolina. His Senatorial position lasted until his death in 1850, with the exception of about a year while serving as Secretary of State under President Tyler in 1844.

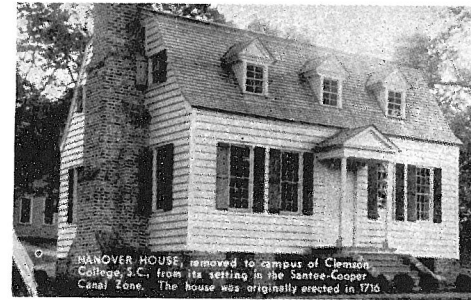

It was through Mr. Calhoun's passionate intercession that the United States established the rights to Oregon and Washington Territories; he tactfully maneuvered the annexation of Texas, and also favored the building of great highways and canals for opening up the great interior, etc.

When war clouds gathered with Mexico, John C. Calhoun did all in his power to prevent hostilities. In one of his speeches on the subject he advised, "War can make us great, but let it never be forgotten that peace can make us both great and free."

As Mr. Calhoun had nobly come to the aid of South Carolina in her Nullification trouble, he was now appealed to for help in her fight for States' Rights on the slavery issue. In the beginning the State was not in favor of slavery, and in the days of the Proprietors, efforts were made to check it. Now the negroes were here and had to be taken care of; after the invention of the cotton gin, more cotton was raised and more negroes were required to take care of it. In the majority of cases, the negroes were happy and contented as they became more and more civilized.

On March 4, 1850, at 12:30 o'clock, John C. Calhoun entered the Senate chamber to make his last speech to save the Union. He was gravely ill and leaned heavily on the arm of a friend as he made his way to his seat. The room was crowded with people. Senator Calhoun stood and spoke a few words, then handed his manuscript to Senator Mason of Virginia to read for him. During the reading of the speech, there was a deep silence and many of the law makers were moved to tears. Henry Clay and Daniel Webster listened intently, and there was a deep silence among the

HANOVER HOUSE

Hanover House was brought to the Clemson campus in the early 1940's from its original setting near Pinopolis, South Carolina. The house was originally erected in 1716 by Paul de St. Julien on his plantation, which is now included in the Santee-Cooper reservoir area. The plantation was purchased from the de St. Julien descendants by the South Carolina Public Service Authority, and the house turned over to Clemson College for preservation.

Before any part of the building was torn down for removal to its new location, each plank was tagged and photographed. After arriving on the campus, each piece was accurately assembled by adhering to plans, photographs, and numerals. Cypress lumber was chiefly used for both exterior and interior.

The two huge end chimneys of hand-made bricks were each erected for triple duty—accommodating fireplaces in the basement and on the first and second floors. The top of the south chimney bears a French inscription, PEU A PEU, in large letters placed there by the original builder, meaning perhaps that the chimney grew little by little as the bricks were made by hand a few at a time.

The name, "Hanover," was probably chosen by Mr. de St. Julien for his plantation in honor of the ruling House of Hanover which came to power in England in 1714 with the beginning of the reign of George I.

OLD STONE CHURCH

The Old Stone Church and cemetery are about two miles southeast of Fort Hill. The John C. Calhoun Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, some years ago erected a stone amphitheatre on the church grounds for the purpose of holding Confederate Memorial Day exercises.

The church, of Presbyterian faith, was organized in 1789, and a log building erected. This building burned shortly afterwards, either catching from a forest fire or set on fire by the Indians. The present stone structure stands on a site about a mile away from the first edifice.

Seventeen acres of land was donated for the church and cemetery by "Printer" John Miller—publisher of the famous Junius Letters in England which led to a greater freedom of the press. The building of rough field stone was erected by John Rusk, father of Thomas Jefferson Rusk of Texas fame. The steep stairs on the outside of the building lead to the gallery where the negroes came

John Caldwell Calhoun

March 18, 1782, John Caldwell Calhoun, son of Patrick, and Martha Caldwell Calhoun, was born near Abbeville, South Carolina, and named in honor of his grandfather, John Caldwell, and an uncle, Major John Caldwell, a Revolutionary hero. The youth's early life was spent on his father's plantation, doing his share of the farm work. His early education was received from his parents as there was no school near his home. About the age of thirteen, he was sent to his brother-in-law, Dr. Moses Waddell, a Presbyterian minister, who had a school for boys in his home in Georgia. As he had access to Dr. Waddell's library, he read so intensely that his health started failing, and when his father died a few months later, his mother brought him home and encouraged him to lead an outdoor life to regain his health.

When John was eighteen years of age, his formal education was started by entering Dr. Waddell's Willington Academy, which had been moved across the Savannah River into South Carolina near the Calhoun homestead. Mrs. Calhoun, realizing the brilliant mind of her son, was anxious for him to resume his studies with Dr. Waddell; therefore, a family council was called, and it was agreed upon that John should have a complete professional education from the best schools of the land. In two years, Dr. Waddell had him ready to enter the Junior Class at Yale, where two years later (1804) he received his A. B. degree with distinction. Illness prevented him from delivering his graduating address on the following subject, "The Qualifications Necessary to Constitute a Perfect Statesman."

In July, 1805, John C. Calhoun entered the Litchfield Law School in Connecticut. The following year his law study was continued in Charleston and Abbeville, South Carolina. In 1807 he was admitted to the bar, and opened his first office in his old home town of Abbeville. His law practice was short-lived, however, as he was elected to the State Legislature, and three years later was sent to the House of Representatives in Washington, taking his seat there in November, 1811. Practically all the rest of his life of forty years was spent serving the nation in some official capacity in Washington.

In 1811, the political atmosphere was charged with excitement over the American seamen treatment by the English. Speaker of the House, Henry Clay, appointed young Calhoun a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee. On December 12 his first speech in reply to John Randolph of Virginia, won for him an outstanding reputation as a leader.

Statue of the Honorable John Caldwell Calhoun is in Statuary Hall of the Capitol in Washington, D. C., the old Hall of Representatives, the scene of his first efforts and labors in the service of the nation. The unveiling and formal presentation to the nation took place on March 12, 1910. At the conclusion of the exercises in Statuary Hall, further ceremonies were conducted in the Senate chamber, in which both Senators and Members of the House took part in many glowing speeches in tribute to the great South Carolinian.

Excerpts from the speech of Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts: "We do well to place here a statue of CALHOUN. I would that he could stand with none but his peers about him and not elbowed and crowded by the temporarily notorious obscure. His statue is here by right. He was really a great man, one of the great figures of history. In that history he stands out clear, distinct, commanding. There is no trace of the demagogue about him. He was a bold as well as a deep thinker, and he had to the full the courage of his convictions. The doctrines of socialism were as alien to him as the worship of commercialism. He raised his mind to truths. He believed that statesmanship must move on a high plane, and he could not conceive that mere money making and money spending were the highest objects of ambition in the lives of men or nations."<sup>1</sup> to worship with their white masters. The stone wall around the cemetery was built in 1900 at a cost of more than $500.00.

Among the historic graves in the churchyard are—three Revolutionary soldiers, General Andrew Pickens, J. A. Garvin, and John Rusk; forty-one Confederate veterans; Governor Andrews Pickens of the War of 1812; "Printer" John Miller, publisher of the Pendleton Messenger—paper printed on the press used by General Nathaniel Greene for printing military orders on during the Revolutionary War; Turner Bynum, brilliant young journalist who was a duel victim of Nullification days, etc.

FARMERS' HALL

The Pendleton Farmers' Society, organized in 1815, and still active, has the oldest Farmers' Hall in the United States—erected in 1826. Pendleton's post office occupies the first floor.

Among the relics on the second floor is the original banner carried by the Pendleton Company of Wade Hampton's Red Shirts of the Reconstruction era. On the dark blue banner in prominent red letters are these words:

THE RED SHIRTS — AUG. 27, 1876

Occupying a prominent place on the square in front of the building is the old cannon used by the above company. The last firing of the cannon was in celebration of Grover Cleveland's election for his first term as President of the United States. Near the cannon is a sun dial given to the Society by Col. Francis Huger, known as the liberator of the Marquis de Lafayette from the dungeon of Olmutz. According to legend, Col. Huger received the sun dial as a gift from Lafayette.

During a meeting of the Farmers' Society in 1867, Mr. Clemson stressed the need of a school where the youth of the State could learn methods of scientific agriculture. This educational germ remained with him through the years, and at his death his generous gift of land and money made possible the establishing of Clemson College on the Fort Hill estate.

John C. Calhoun and Thomas G. Clemson both served as presidents of the Pendleton Farmers' Society.

Introduction

This brochure is not intended to be a complete record of the restoration of the Fort Hill shrine, but only a brief glimpse into the homelife of South Carolina's eminent statesman, John C. Calhoun—family man, neighbor, and friend. Libraries all over the nation contain numerous volumes written by prominent writers dealing with the public life of the noted Carolinian.

Fort Hill, old plantation home of the illustrious statesman, is a shrine to his memory, and is lovingly and carefully preserved through the cooperation of Clemson College officials and the United Daughters of the Confederacy of South Carolina. Numerous pages would be required to give a detailed report of the various individuals who have worked hard and faithfully to launch and foster through the years the restoration of the home to date; however, complete records are on file both for donors of gifts and all who have given aid in any form.

In 1888, after the death of Thomas G. Clemson, son-in-law of Calhoun, his housekeeper, Mrs. Jane Prince was left in charge of the relics at Fort Hill. A few years later, John Francis Calhoun, grand-nephew of John C. Calhoun, and family, came to Fort Hill to reside, and the relics were under their supervision. When the house was discontinued as a residence around 1928, to have each room restored, Miss Ida Calhoun was appointed custodian of the shrine, and at her death in 1943, the writer succeeded her as custodian.

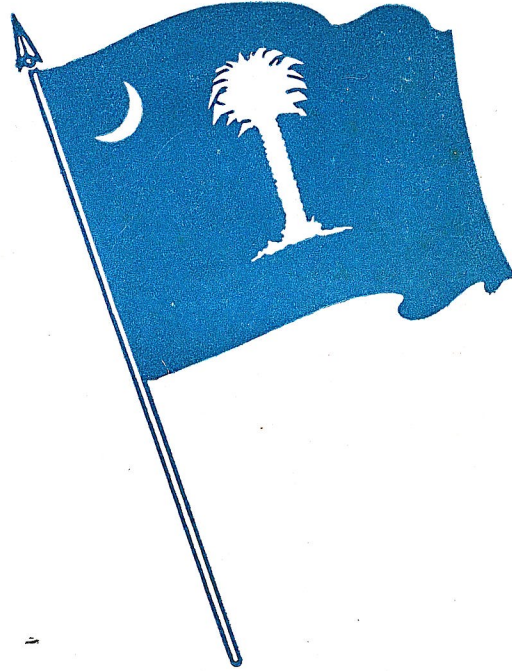

I am indebted for much of my information from personal interviews with Miss Margaret M. Calhoun, great-great-granddaughter of John C. Calhoun; interviews with the late Mrs. Jane Prince, who died in 1946—age 97; Calhoun-Clemson letters; Fort Hill information in files of Mrs. J. E. Hunter; articles on Fort Hill and furnishings written by Mrs. P. H. Mell in 1904-'05; "Life of Thomas G. Clemson," by Holmes and Sherrill. "Death and Funeral Ceremonies of Calhoun"—published 1850. "Pendleton Farmers' Society," by Newman and Stribling. "Old Stone Church History" compiled by Dr. R. N. Brackett; and U. D. C. History.

My deepest appreciation is extended to the following for illustrations used herein: photographs—John Wigington, Jr., Lewis D. Moorhead, Dorothy Cook and L. V. Barnett; drawings—Mrs. Richard P. Reagan for sketch of Calhoun's statue in the Capitol, Washington, D. C., and Thomas FitzPatrick for etching of Fort Hill; to Hobbies Magazine, Chicago, Illinois, for permission to use its sketch of Calhoun coat of arms; and to Comfort Dietz, the Dietz Press, Richmond, Virginia, for cut of John C. Calhoun Confederate Postage Stamp.

New chamber president pushes for cooperation between cities

By Dr. Wallace Calhoun
President,
Pascagoula-Moss Point
Area Chamber of Commerce

It's time to encourage a new era of understanding, tolerance, and cooperation between our cities themselves and between the cities and the surrounding unincorporated areas. After all, the prime reasons for a chamber of commerce are to push ideas and things that make a better life for people and encourage a healthy business climate. In our adjacent cities indeed in the county as a whole, we find that no area is self-sufficient for goods and services. Shopping for goods, professional services, ambulance service, construction service, advertising media, entertainment, religious needs, charities, and employment are especially notable crossovers. What is healthy for one community is likely to be healthy for our other communities.

There are, however, some unique areas that need attention in one area as compared to another. The more residential areas, as contrasted with the more industrial areas are at some disadvantage when it comes to tax base to support schools, public utilities, streets, fire, and police protection. I am quick to say that this is not the chamber's prime responsibility, but rather that of the city, county, and school officials, but what I am asking for is concern and tolerance for each other's needs and responsibilities.

On occasion some misunderstandings have arisen, and in an effort to clarify one long and repeatedly controversial point, I beg your brief indulgence. Some 14 years ago Pascagoula School District was hurting because it paid Minimum Education Funds back to the state based on its assessed valuation which for the first time then included Standard Oil; but it would be 10 years before it collected taxes on that industry. The district school trustees held out to the other three school districts an offer to split Standard Oil taxes with them for years of financial help to offset the increased Minimum Education Fund tax assessment going to the state. These funds largely went to less well-to-do Mississippi school districts. Moss Point School District, which was the only one with legal counsel at the time, opposed this arrangement on the basis that it probably was unconstitutional to tax one group on a different basis from another in a tax district. There seemed no way to test it in court for 10 years when it likely would have been declared unconstitutional. Thus the other three districts would have lost their contributions and probably would have been liable for replacing them. This explanation is an effort to close old wounds, not reopen them.

Be that as it may, the chamber of commerce many times has to be the catalyst that brings different political subdivisions together to effect a solution when a problem appears. It is a forum where it is easy to let all sides be heard. Some examples: Except for the chamber of commerce, we probably would still have a two-lane highway connecting Pascagoula and Moss Point. It was a chamber committee headed by Harold Monroe that forced the issue with the highway commissioner and after long and tedious sessions broke the bottleneck over who would provide funds to relocate utilities along the road. It takes chamber action to help put together such projects as the L&N overpass, widening of Chicot Road north of Highway 90, six-laning U.S. 90 in congested areas, providing turning lanes, putting together a workable ambulance service, encouraging beautification projects, encouraging cultural development with an Arts and Crafts show, and on and on. These come about not so much from our financial contributions, but from our wide range of talented businessmen and women who contribute generously on their time, effort, and ideas.

Among the factors that influenced me to choose this area as home 26 years ago were superb schools, one of the most attractive places on the coast to rear children, a high per capita income level, and a medical community encompassing Pascagoula and Moss Point that got along together extremely well. Much of the same applies now to the entire area.

As a chamber of commerce we cannot do everything ourselves. We certainly cannot finance many of the projects we support and push. We must assist groups with similar goals for the good of all concerned. Just now a group called MPAC (Moss Point Active Citizens) has organized to encourage pride in the city more than anything else. Its objectives coincide with those of the chamber just as do the Jaycees and other groups around. I want us to encourage them and help them reach their honorable goals. No group will supplant the Chamber of Commerce unless we fail to do our job.

You know how important this chamber is to prosperity, free enterprise, and a good life in general. We stand up for and support our community by pinpointing and pushing projects that make it a good place to operate a business, work, and live. Give us your wholehearted support.

Dr. Ann Calhoun Dent of Jackson served her sister as matron of honor, and Warren D. Childs of Atlanta stood with his brother-in-law as best man.

Ushers were George M. Calhoun of Hurley, brother of the bride, and Gary H. Phillips, son of the bridegroom.

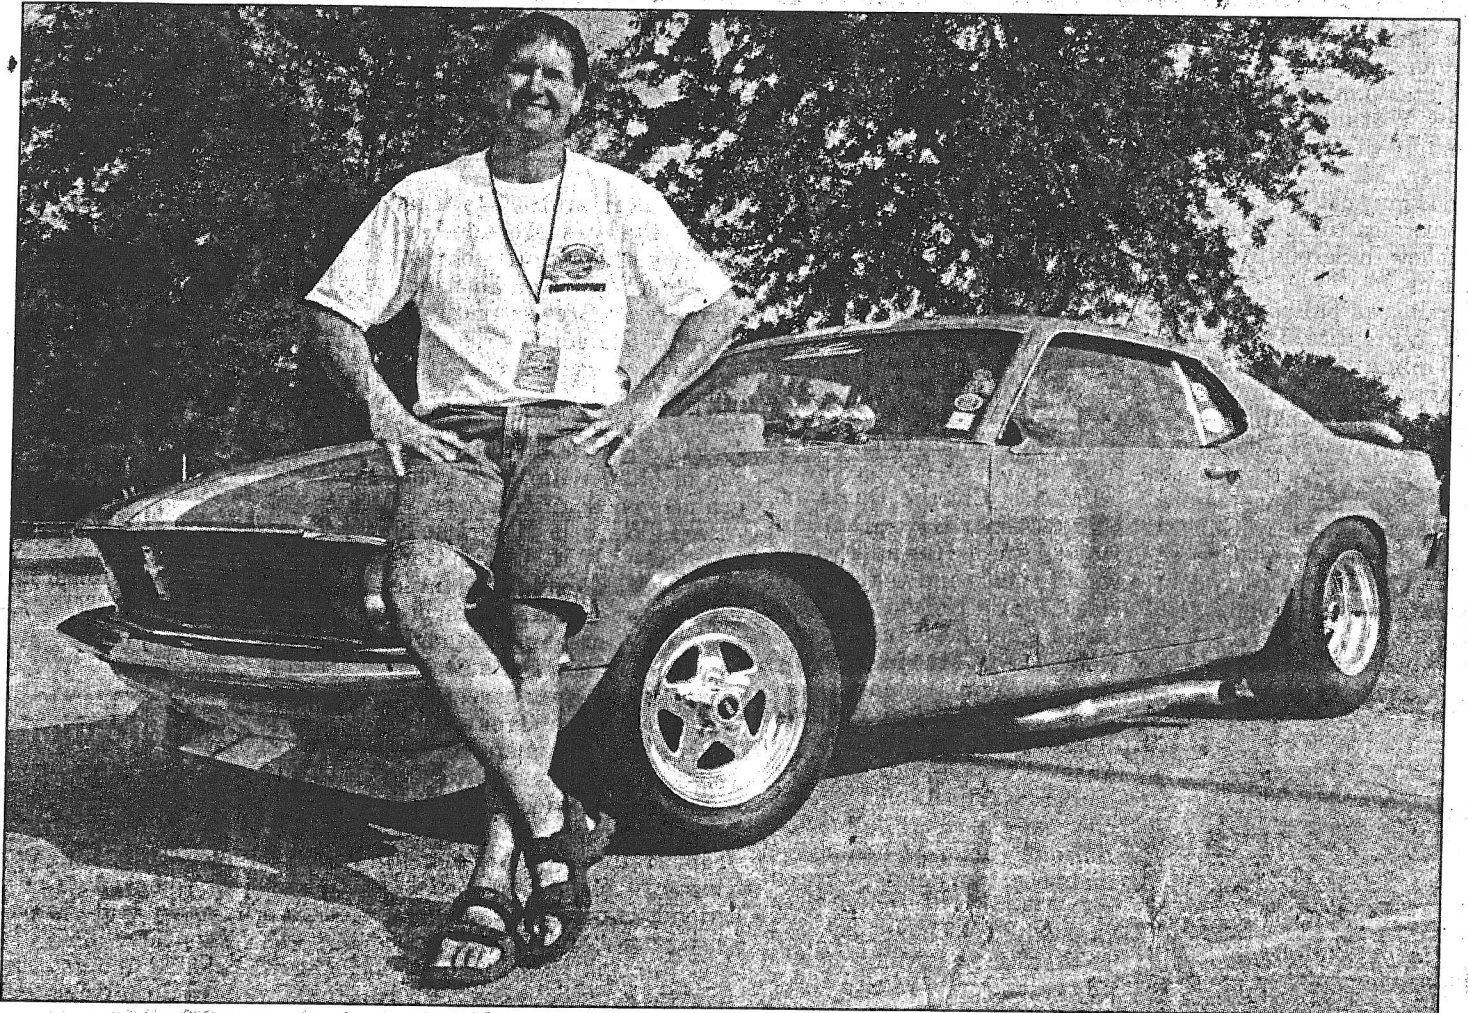

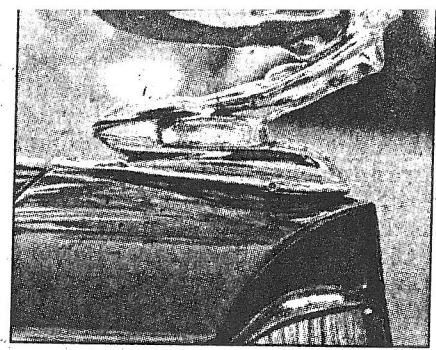

A reception followed at the Wyndham Garden Hotel of Atlanta. After a wedding cruise of the islands of the Caribbean, the couple is at home in Atlanta. On the eve of the wedding, the Atlanta home of the bridegroom was the setting for a rehearsal supper.

Cruisin' to 'Goula

Christy Pritchett/The Mississippi Press

Chris Calhoun, of Pascagoula, leans against his vintage 1970 Ford Mustang. Calhoun restored the car in 10 months after it was submerged during Hurricane Katrina. Calhoun is looking forward to showing off his car during the Cruisin' the Coast events this weekend.

Local car enthusiasts excited about city's first Cruisin' the Coast event

By BRAD CROCKER

The Mississippi Press

PASCAGOULA— When Chris Calhoun returned to his mother's garage in Delmas Estates in Pascagoula after Hurricane Katrina and found that his 1970 Ford Mustang had gone under 3½ feet of water, he placed as much priority in restoring the vintage vehicle as he did for his home.

"I lived on Lanier Street north of here and that's when I realized the whole town must have gone under," Calhoun said.

Like other local vintage car owners, Calhoun's work getting his car ready for the 10th annual Cruisin' The Coast was a major undertaking, but one that had to be done.

The times he has worked this week, Calhoun has been volunteering for the Cruisin' events that kicked off Sunday.

He's used that time to invite cruisers to Pascagoula for the city's first officially sanctioned Cruisin' event today, which will include a free Charlie Daniels concert in Beach Park from 6-9 p.m.

Point Physician Sees Service To Humanity Weakened, Left Empty By Medicare Law

By JAMES LANHAM

The advent of Medicare has been a major disappointment in the otherwise - rewarding professional life of Dr. Wallace Calhoun of Moss Point.

"For decades, this nation has been the unquestioned leader in all phases of medical care and research," he said. "To scrap our system of private practice in order to copy more backward countries is just plain stupid."

"I never thought I would live to see the day when the medical community of America

would be subjected to a rebirth in the image of a vastly inferior system of socialized medicine.

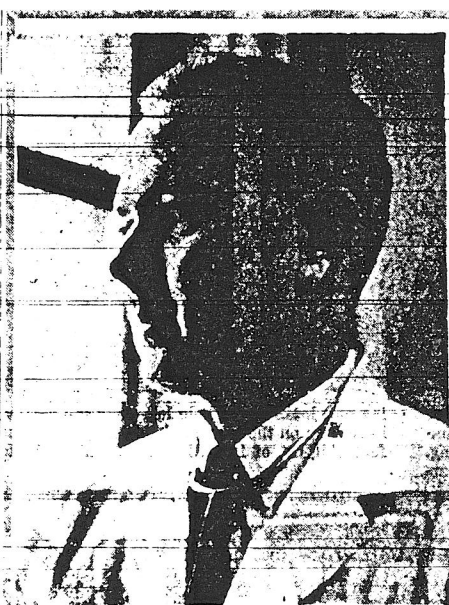

"As a boy, I was inspired to become a physician by a doctor whose life of volunteer service to God through service to man was a compelling influence in the community. I always wanted to emulate his success at living."

DEGRADING

"To me, the freedom to really give oneself to community service is the most precious heritage of our time and nation. But to be compelled to serve under a law that demands for itself the satisfaction of service is both degrading and empty."

Dr. Calhoun's decision to become a general practitioner came early in his youth at Shubuta, Miss., a little country town located near the headwaters of the Greater Pascagoula River Basin in Clarke County.

A hero to both young Wallace

DR. WALLACE CALHOUN

Calhoun and his friend and now - partner Clyde Gunn, was the town physician, Dr. Albert P. Hand, who incidentally, is still the only doctor in his community.

"He was the finest man I ever knew," Dr. Calhoun said. "He was scoutmaster, lay leader, second father and helper to everyone. We all looked to Dr. Hand when someone was sick, when a new community house was needed, when land was wanted for a scout hut, or just about anything else."

"He was always ready to recapture a wayward pet, bandage up a stubbed toe, or show a younger brother and a 13-year-old sister.

Following the mother's death, the children were moved to Montevallo, Ala. where the father was principal of the city's high school.

"We ate at the school dining hall and lived in quarters on the campus," Dr. Calhoun remembers. This was his senior year.

ENTERS SERVICE

Six days after graduation, young Calhoun signed up to enter the Army. His World War II military service saw him assigned to ASTT, the army's college training corps for officers-to-be. The program terminated, however, three months before he completed his training.

Out of the service in 1946 with two years of college to his credit, he immediately enrolled in the University of Alabama for pre-med courses.

During Christmas vacation of his first year, his father died, leaving the 19-year-old Wallace head of a family of three, all of whom were declared of legal age by probate courts.

He moved his 15-year-old sister to the university campus; the younger brother took care of his own plight by joining the Navy.

At the university, Calhoun met Mary Elizabeth Malone of Dothan, Ala., who is now Mrs. Calhoun. They married the year he entered medical school.

After an internship at the University of Miami Hospital, the Calhouns came to Moss Point in 1953 and set up practice with his boyhood friend, Dr. Clyde Gunn.

Dr. Calhoun's activity in community affairs has been in keeping with his deeply-rooted patriotic belief that a city or a nation is only as good as the people make it.

His conservative outlook and demand for responsibility in governing authorities is felt where ever he serves.

Elected to the Moss Point school board in 1963 Dr. Calhoun now serves as president of the body. During his tenure as chairman of the board the bonded indebtedness of the school district has been paid to the point where it is the lowest of any district in Mississippi. Taxes in the district are also near the bottom of the list for schools in the state.

Dr. Calhoun strongly feels that medical care in the country will deteriorate to "pimping" if the profession is socialized much further.

LOSE RESPONSIBILITY

"Government medicine will never be of the quality that the free enterprise system has developed," he said. "Where government takes over, individual responsibility is gone. This means that many sick people will go untreated who are not included in the government's program of medical care, but who are unable to afford private treatment."

"Until the federal government, through the Kerr-Mills Act, started meddling with Mississippi medicine, the record will show that no single person in Jackson County ever went without medical treatment because of inability to pay. I doubt if this is now true."

"When we reach the point where all physicians are absorbed by government medicine, the individual will be forgotten in a morass of production line treatment."

"Our already - crowded hospitals are going to be hard-pressed to take care of the influx of people getting (something for nothing) when free medical care gives relief to those seeking a vacation from caring for their own."

The physician-humanitarian - patriot is a member and past chairman of the official board of the Moss Point Methodist Church, and a past chairman of the church's building committee.

He is also past president of the Coast Counties Medical Society.

Other organizational activities were given up when he recently became a director of the Pascagoula Moss Point bank.

Dr. Calhoun shares to the finest degree the Southerner's hostility against centralized governmental power.

Like another earlier Calhoun, John C. Calhoun of South Carolina, the Moss Point doctor believes in the opportunity to compete.

"The right to rise above our environment is a challenge that should never be legislated away," he says. "I believe in the right to starve if that is the free choice of the individual."

6 Crew Members Among Victims

ARDMORE, Okla. (UPI) — All six crew members of an American Flyers airliner apparently were killed when their craft plunged into a hillside near here Friday night.

The crash claimed the lives of 75 Army personnel. There were 17 survivors, but the list did not contain the names of the crew.

The pilot of the plane was Reed Pigman of Fort Worth, Tex., president and founder of the airline.

Also believed killed in the crash was Pigman's co-pilot, Bill Marr, and engineers Charley Gray and Anthony Pica, all of Ardmore.

Two stewardesses also died. They were Wanda Stonecipher of Stratford, Okla., and Diane Duncan, from Texas. Miss Duncan's hometown was not immediately known.

Church has special quiz-answer program

A supper was June 18 at Dantzler Memorial United Methodist Church. The youth and Fellowship Sunday School Class, composed of men and women considerably older, participated in a quiz-answer program.

Charlotte Johnson, discional minister; Lisa Burck, youth counselor; and Betty Calhoun, Sunday school teacher planned this event.

The fellowship class, who primary teacher is John Roberts, formulated 20 Christian beliefs that they believe and live by. Then questions were composed with the beliefs used as the answers.

The class members were the panel of questioners and the youth were the contestants. If 90 percent of the questions were answered correctly, a check of $100 was to be presented to the youth program by Hazel Christopher, finance chairman, and contributed by members of the Sunday school class.

For several weeks, Ms. Burck met for special sessions of training and discussion with the young people for drills on the Christian beliefs specified. One hundred percent correct was scored on the test.

After the supper and the quiz, Frances Gardner led the group in games the older members played years ago — hop scotch and a version of spin the bottle. David Lynn received the hop scotch prize.

Milynda Burck led the group in games the young people liked — musical chairs and "If you love me, don't laugh."

The youth fund is being raised so the youth may go to Tennessee and help in some building in a Methodist project called "Mountaintop."

John CALDWELL born in Ireland and died 1750-51 in Lunenburg Co VA m Margaret Phillips b in Ireland and d before 1748 were great grandparents of John C. Calhoun who became VP US. Of course he could be son of John (jr) CALDWELL but >>

I wonder if in the info posted in note here as coming from John CALHOUN writing, he is not speaking of his greatgrandfather John (Sr). William CALDWELL, who with his father John Sr., were significant in leadership of a colony of Presbyterians after a period in Lancaster Co PA led them to Old Lunenburg Co. VA in 1746 where the two of them were members of its first county court.

The limited collection of info I have lists Martha CALDWELL's father as this William CALDWELL and a John CALDWELL a brother (died 1775) was married to Mary (DAVIS), and was Captian of Rangers, SC. Another of her John> CALDWELL relatives was a 1st cousin.

The problem with this lineage is that it ignores the FACT that John C.'s parents were cousins. The Martha who was the

Patrick. BUT the Martha whose parents were John Caldwell &
Martha Calhoun WERE related as Martha Calhoun Caldwell's

Hi Helen,

Yes, there is a connection, but I can't elaborate on the CALDWELL family. The initial "C." in John's name represents CALDWELL, his mother's maiden name. John's father, Patrick
CALHOUN, Jr., m., 2nd Martha CALDWELL (b. 1750, along Cub Creek, Charlotte Co, VA). Martha died in May 1802 and she is buried in the CALHOUN family cemetery in Abbeville Co, SC.

I'm afraid that I don't have any info on Martha CALDWELL's family at all.

Hope that helps; maybe some of the other CALHOUN &
CALDWELL researchers on the BB can give you more info on Martha's family.

Take care & good luck.

Thanks for responding to my earlier note. I am looking forward to your information.

In the meantime I received some information about Susan Anna Caldwell's parents in the mail--from a family Bible in MS. Never expected to get the info, but I got lucky.

Her father was Milton Young Caldwell (b. 1/16/1846); mother, Julia Ann Cobb (b. 1/29/1843)--his first wife. Their other children were Lila Augusta (b. 1867), Samuel Besley (sic) (b. 1868), Sarah Emma (b. 1871), and Middleton Young (b. 1872). His other wives were Lawah (?) Frances Hardin and Hattie McLand, with children by his 2nd wife.

It will be interesting to find out if these Caldwells tie in with yours. . .

Mickey, George W. Calhoun married Elizabeth Trimble. Their son Joseph Trimble Calhoun was born 12/28/1803 in SC. Joseph Trimble Calhoun married Elizabeth Ann Bank 12/3/1829. Joseph moved to Mississippi before the Civil War. Does this match any of your info?

Donna, I do not know who George W. Calhoun's parents were. He married Elizabeth Trimble. Their first son, Joseph Trimble Calhoun was born 12/28/1803. This means that George W. Calhoun was probably born before 1783. George W. could possibly be the son of one of your Calhouns. That is all I have on George. Does this match any of your info?

CALHOUN FAMILY, 12 February 1992

TO: Dewitt Uptagrafft (HMJM66A)

Hi Dewitt,

I'm certainly not the CALHOUN expert on the board, but I copied a message from the board on 4 Dec 1991 from Larry Washam (ID: TRVT34A) which mentions a George CALHOUN (no middle initial & no further info). George was listed as the 3rd child of seven; son of Alexander CALHOUN (b. Antrim County, Ireland, d. Old Pendleton District, SC, buried Roberts Church [which is in current Anderson County, SC, I believe]); Alexander's wife was Susannah Barber (d. 1827). The only year of birth for the children was for George's brother, John CALHOUN (b. 1790, Anderson District, SC). At least two of the children apparently moved to Georgia. Source cited by Larry was, "Stanley and Kindred Families," by Guttery, 1960, page 26.

You might be able to obtain more info from Larry. If you think is your George, and can't contact Larry, I'll be glad to post his entire message.

Good luck!
